NEW RELEASE: DOCURAMA

SYNOPSIS The largest domestic natural gas drilling boom in history has swept across the United States. The Halliburton-developed drilling technology of "fracking" or hydraulic fracturing has unlocked a "Saudi Arabia of natural gas" just beneath us. But is fracking safe? When filmmaker Josh Fox is asked to lease his land for drilling, he embarks on a cross-country odyssey uncovering a trail of secrets, lies and contamination. A recently drilled nearby Pennsylvania town reports that residents are able to light their drinking water on fire. This is just one of the many absurd and astonishing revelations of a new country called GASLAND. Part verité travelogue, part exposé, part mystery, part bluegrass banjo meltdown, part showdown.

GASLAND

A searing exposé of natural gas drilling

- Winner of the Special Jury Prize for Documentaries at the 2010 Sundance Film Festival, GASLAND was an official selection at numerous other festivals, including True/False, Hot Docs, Big Sky, LA, Sydney, Telluride, and Washington D.C. Environmental Film Festivals.
- Premiered on HBO in June 2010, followed by a theatrical release, Oscar® campaign and extensive grassroots semi-theatrical run.
- Received rave reviews from major outlets, including Variety ("Incredibly inspiring and heart-wrenching") and the Washington Post ("On the want-to-see-scale, GASLAND tops the list").
- Natural gas drilling is the latest hot-button issue related to the environment and energy crisis, with 34 states affected and 40 trillion gallons of water having already been used for fracking purposes.
- PR and grassroots outreach to environmental organizations and bloggers as well as those concerned with politics and current events; opportunities for promotion with other environmental titles and repromotion around Earth Day.
