

SYNOPSIS: Explore the remarkable life of singer-songwriter Bill Withers, a working-class man who rose to fame and fortune with hits such as "Ain't No Sunshine", "Just the Two of Us," and "Lean on Me," then retreated from the spotlight to focus on his family. Packed with live performances, a tribute concert, and interviews with Sting, African American scholar Cornel West and others, this documentary follows Withers as he reflects on his past and contemplates his future.
