Based on Alain de Botton's International Bestseller *On Love

"A guilty-pleasure popcorn flick that hits all genre notes." – LA Weekly

NEW YORK, DECEMBER 23, 2010 – After his latest failed relationship, Duncan has hit emotional rock bottom. He just can't understand what, or who, has caused all of his relationships to fail. Was it something he did ... or didn't do? In his final attempt to determine where it all went wrong, Duncan takes a fantasy ride through his last five girlfriends. Guided by his memories, our 30-something protagonist makes his way through Duncan World, a surreal amusement park where each ride represents a failed liaison – and they become increasingly scary. He's pretended not to care about exes who haven't quite disappeared, given disastrous fashion advice, elaborately faked a "chance" encounter, and even been the first in the couple to utter those three special words. Nothing seems to work out right, but that's all about to change.

Though its themes of love and relationships are universal, My Last Five Girlfriends is anything but ordinary. Julian Kemp's take on Alain De Botton's international bestseller On Love is a unique and wonderful story about love and our addiction to it. Its clever and innovative structure, like relationships themselves, can veer into unexpected places. Brendan Patricks (BBC America's Gavin & Stacey) handles Duncan's roller-coaster journey with delicious wit and charm, and each of his five leading ladies bring interesting idiosyncratic nuances to their characters in this poignant and whimsical tale. The vivid supporting cast includes Michael Sheen (Frost/Nixon), Naomie Harris (Pirates of the Caribbean) and Jane March (Clash of the Titans).

TV.com calls it "visually arresting. Kemp and Co. know the film's charms and limitations and keep it short and (mostly) sweet..." And Monsters and Critics declares it "a rom-com worth watching."

My Last Five Girlfriends is one of a selection of Tribeca Film titles being distributed by New Video in 2010 and 2011. Tribeca Film is a distribution platform acquiring and releasing films year-round and is supported by Founding Partner American Express. The films range from award-winning dramas and revealing documentaries to uproarious comedies and stunning animated features, many of which premiered at the 2010 Tribeca Film Festival prior to theatrical runs in New York and Los Angeles. The films from the Tribeca Film slate were also available on video on demand in 40 million U.S. homes simultaneously with their Festival screenings through relationships with leading telecom, cable and satellite providers.

New Video plans to release one to two titles per month leading up to the 2011 Tribeca Film Festival.
