The acclaimed cult classic returns in a special 2-disc set

One of the defining documentaries of the 20th century, THE ATOMIC CAFE is now available in a special two-disc collector's set, elegantly packaged in a hardcover case and containing over 100 minutes of extras. Whimsical and yet razor-sharp, this timeless classic illuminates the often comic paradoxes of life in the "Atomic Age," while also exhibiting a genuine nostalgia for a more innocent nation.

Narrated through an astonishing array of vintage clips and music, THE ATOMIC CAFE revolves around the threat—and thrill—of the newly minted atomic bomb. Taking aim at the propaganda and false optimism of the 1950s, the film's satire shines most vividly in clever image splicing. The bonus disc includes 8 must-see, original propaganda films, including the infamous Duck and Cover (1950).

- Beautifully packaged hard cover edition of the cult-classic film features hilarious bonus government propaganda films in their entirety on a second disc.
- From critically-acclaimed directors Kevin Rafferty, Jayne Loader, and Pierce Rafferty.
- Perfectly timed to address the on-going hot button issue of America's War on Terrorism.

BONUS DISC FEATURES EIGHT GOVERNMENT PROPAGANDA FILMS IN THEIR ENTIRETY:

With kind permission from the Prelinger Archives

- Duck and Cover (1951)
- Our Cities Must Fight (1951)
- House in the Middle (1954)
- Self Preservation in an Atomic Attack (1950)
- Operation Crossroads (1946)
- Operation Cue (1955)
- Survival Under Atomic Attack (1951)
- Birth of the B-29 (1945)
